

Predatory Academic Journals and Conferences

An online webinar

19 November 2021, 10:00-12:00 CET

Webinar Objectives:

1. To raise awareness of predatory journals and conferences in the region
2. To help researchers practice due diligence to minimise their (and their students') risk
3. To discuss the threat of predatory practices and why addressing them is so important
4. To preview some of the recommendations of the IAP study on predatory academic practices.

10:00-10:10    Welcome and introduction – Professor Christina Moberg, EASAC President

Demographic slide from registration forms: who is participating?
Short pre-webinar poll to assist webinar evaluation

10:10-10:30    Introducing predatory journals and conferences: key messages of the IAP study - IAP Working Group members Prof. Diane Negra and Prof. Stefan Eriksson

10:30-11:50    Panel discussion: predatory academic practices in the European research community

- Professor Stefan Eriksson, IAP Working Group member (Sweden)
- Professor Diane Negra, IAP Working Group member (Ireland)
- Professor Wim van Saarloos, Incoming EASAC President (Netherlands)
- Professor Donald Dingwell, EASAC Council Member (Academia Europaea)
- Professor Mats Gyllenberg, EASAC Council Member (Finland)
- GYA Panelist (to be confirmed shortly)

Moderated by Tracey Elliott (IAP Project Director) and Christiane Diehl (EASAC Executive Director)

Interactive questions and answers with online registrants.

11:50-12:00    Closing remarks – Tracey Elliott and Christiane Diehl

- Forthcoming IAP report and IAP small grants programme
- A call to action: countering predatory academic practices in Europe and globally

Short post-webinar survey to assist webinar evaluation